

I used to get an average of 4-6 calls DAILY before I placed my self on the Do Not Call List in Wisconsin. Some of these calls were all from the same company. I call that harrassment, NOT marketing. I definitely do not want the serenity of my home constantly disrupted by these incessant calls. If I was interested in another bank, and moved my accounts, there was a reason. No amount of cajoling is going to change my mind. They have advertising dollars, let them use them. Leave me alone in my choices. Calling me on a daily, sometimes hourly basis, is not the way to win my business. In fact it's just the opposite.
